program. This course consists of 14 hours of a combination of range, or on-road instruction, and a final road skills examination for course is taught by state certified teachers with an endorsement in driver's education. The driver education vehicles are equipped with dual brakes, restraint systems, extra rearview mirrors and other safety devices. The School Division provides full support for this instructional program. To be eligible for in-car instruction, the student must have a Virginia learner's permit, have completed or be currently enrolled in an approved classroom driver education course, and must have driven a minimum of two hours with parent supervision. Parental involvement in the instruction of the student is recommended by using the 45-hour ParentTean guide. It is recommended that parents drive with their student and complete 10 hours of driving using sessions 1- 7 in the(Parent Guidelbefore you begin in car instruction.* Upon successful completion of classroom driver education, in-car instruction, and the road test, students may be issued a 180-day temporary driver's license. Will become valid on the day the student turns 16 years 3 months, only if he/she has held a learner's permit for at least nine months. This document, accompanied by a valid learner's permit, allows the student to operate a motor vehicle with no adult supervision. Students driving with a learner's permit are usually covered by their parents' insurance policy (check with your insurance company) but will need additional coverage once they receive their 180-day temporary license. Virginia State Law requires that a student must be properly insured on the day the 180-day provisional license is issued. Thus, 180-day provisional licenses that are post dated will be given to the parent/guardian only and will not be given to a student.
